U. S. TRANSPORT IS TORPEDOED

Damage Slight and Ship Returned to Port Under its Own Steam—Was on Return Voyage.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 1.—The American transport Finland was torpedoed by a German submarine while returning to the United States after having carried American troops to France.

Secretary Daniels announced this afternoon the torpedoing of the transport after having received meagre advice from Admiral Sims, in command of the destroyer squadron in foreign waters.

An official statement by the secretary of the navy said the Finland was only slightly damaged and returned to port under her own steam. No mention was made of casualties in the secretary's statement.

The following statement was authorized by Secretary Daniels:

"The navy department has received a dispatch that the transport Finland was torpedoed while returning from foreign waters. The damage was slight and the transport returned to port under her own steam. The Finland was under escort but no sign of the torpedo or of the submarine was seen."

ITALIAN ARMY MAKES A STAND

Loss of Men Has Been Small, Notwithstanding Sensational Statements From Berlin—Decisive Battle on Tagliamento Is Impending.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, Nov. 1.—Italy's army is no longer retreating. Dispatches from the front today declared that the advance of the German and Austro-Hungarian troops is being brought to a halt at every point.

General Cadorna has effected his movements with a very small loss of men, the dispatches said. The indications are that a great struggle is impending. The Italian commander is believed here to have brought up the major part of his reserve troops to the Tagliamento river and that he will no longer give ground before the enemy.

The Italian army leader has replied to Premier Orlando's telegram of yesterday, assuring him that Italy's soldiers will repel the invader. He urged the premier and the country to have confidence.

London, Nov. 1.—General Cadorna's Italian army faced a double menace today as it fell back upon the Tagliamento river for what may prove to be one of the greatest battles of the war.

Von Mackensen is striking forth at two places to crush the Italians. General von Krobantin's new Austrian army is hammering at the gates of Gemona, 25 miles north of Udine. Military authorities here believe this move is intended to effect a crossing of the Tagliamento river at that point. This might permit the outflanking of the Italians and force them to fall back to the Piave river for their stand.

Von Buelow's German army is rushing southward from Udine. It is believed this move is intended to cut off, if possible, the Italian retreat from the Carso and the southern Isonzo.

Regardless of these moves the general belief prevails here that General Cadorna has anticipated such conditions and is making his retreat accordingly.

Coupled with this belief is the confidence in the French and British to land reinforcements at the scene of the impending battle in time to assist the Italian forces in stopping the enemy attack.

Advices from the Italian front today were that the Krobantin army was less than four miles from the Tagliamento river and proceeding rapidly as possible to that point. Advices from Rome bristled with optimism caused by the rush of Allied troops and the financial and shipping aid hurried by America. All Rome believes that General Cadorna's retreat is being carried out in full accordance with earlier plans and with such adroitness which can only reflect credit on the great Italian leader.

Military authorities are somewhat incredulous over today's announcement by Berlin authorities that Mackensen's army has captured 120,000 prisoners and 1,000 guns in the last eight days. Confirmation of such success has not been issued from official headquarters at Rome or from the Italian front.

A feature not to be overlooked, military authorities here point out, is that Italy is united behind the army and the new premier, Orlando. Throughout entire Italy, expressions of confidence in Orlando are being heard.

Military authorities refuse to believe that the morale of the Italian forces has been impaired permanently, asserting that according to most recent advices, perfect order prevails among the Italian troops.

FROM SQUAD 4 OF COMPANY M

Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., Oct. 29.—I have read with interest the various items in your paper about the select service men and how they have fared since leaving Kingston. And it would hardly be amiss if you and the readers of your valuable paper knew how a squad of Co. M has fared.

The good old 4th squad came out under the leadership of Corporal Keator and thank good fortune he is still at the helm. His good right hand is Frank Kraus, who is our boss when "Herb" is out. The other six members of the squad are known best by their nicknames: "Barney" Cragin, "Danny" Ackerman, "Bob" Hyland, "Dave" Weist, "Pep" Short and "Nemo" C'est moi.

We all, as the southerners say, saw all that there was to see in Washington, and gave all that there was to give to Baltimore. Our time and our money principally. O. my, but the Fourth Squad did love Camp Meade, Baltimore, Maryland.

Good things never last, so we found ourselves one night in South Carolina.

But right here we lost "Bob" and "Barney" for one night. Sergeant Lockwood came in and took them away to the corral. For now they are gallant rough riders, breaking in the new mounts and taking care of the horses' welfare. In their place we have Ben Cheshire and Steve Bujak, both A. No. 1 men of Frank Schupp's squad.

Just now the boys are waiting for "retreat," so I think I'll give my friend, rifle 120, the once over, so trusting you will print the picture of the squad and publish this letter, I am, sincerely,

AUBREY ARNST.

HOW BOYS MAY AID OUR SOLDIER BOYS

Ulster County Boys Given An Opportunity To Do Something For the Men in the Army and Navy.

Dad gives of his income to the soldiers, mother and sister knit sweaters and other wearing apparel to be sent to the boys over there, but the boy at home seems to have been left out in assisting in a definite way his brother or friend at the front. At last a great challenge has been presented to the boys of the nation. One hundred thousand boys to earn and give one million dollars is the challenge, each boy thus contributing ten dollars. This money is to be earned, not solicited, borrowed or given by dad or begged from an indulgent aunt but must mean the conscientious effort of the boys to sacrifice for that relative or friend in army camp, on the sea or in France or to a prisoner-of-war.

This wonderful appeal is squarely up to the loyal and patriotic American boys to go over the top in a gigantic task. This work is a part of the great campaign for $37,000,000 to be raised by the Y. M. C. A. and the boys are a vital part of it.

The boys of Ulster county will be given an opportunity during the week of November 11 to pledge their share in earning and contributing with other red-blooded boys of America. Will the boys of Ulster county accept the challenge? The boys of New York state between the ages of 12 and 18 to the number of 16,000 are asked to put it over in the great Empire State and are already beginning to work on this proposition. In some places temporary employment bureaus are being established to get the boys "jobs" at which they can earn the money. In this way the boys must earn the $10 by the perspiration from their front hair, according to C. D. Connell, director of the work for this state. They can only make their own pet Gold Eagle scream for liberty and help the soldiers in France win the war by getting down to brass tacks and doing some real, honest-to-goodness bluster-bringing work. The number and variety of "stunts" which boys are pulling off to get the money to get into the "Eagle Unit" of American boys by giving the gold eagle is astonishing and wonderful. In these days when every little bit of effort counts, it is possible that this little sum will be the straw which will break the back of Prussian terrorism and autocracy.

CAMP DIX SOLDIER NOW A LAWYER

Grant Mackey Brinnier, son of Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier, who is now at Camp Dix, New Jersey as a member of Company L, 310th United States Infantry, has been notified that he passed his recent examination for admission to practice at the bar of the state of New York. Upon taking the constitutional oath before the appellate division of the supreme court, Mr. Brinnier will be entitled to practice as a lawyer.

Mr. Brinnier was born in Kingston and received his education at Kingston Academy. Later he was graduated from the Albany Law School and subsequently studied in the offices of Morschauer & Mack in Poughkeepsie and in the offices of Brinnier & Canfield, where he was managing clerk at the time he left for Camp Dix on September 29th.

Mr. Brinnier has many friends in this city and vicinity and has shown himself well fitted for a lawyer. It is understood that when he shall have served his term in the National Army he will open a law office at Saugerties.

CAMP DIX BY MOONLIGHT

First Experience in Guard Duty—Time to Think About Almost Everything—Some Shadows of Camp Life.

Co. F, 363rd Engrs., Camp Dix, N. J., Oct. 29, 11:15 a. m.—I just got up and will tell you my first experience at interior guard duty. As you know I did not expect to go on duty yet this week but someone went away and my name was added to the list, so I got my turn. I drew second relief, post No. 2, which is guarding the First Battalion barracks and the train. I went on duty at 8 and was relieved at 10, then went on at 2 a. m. and was relieved at 4 a. m. It was a beautiful clear night with the moon so bright I could read by it. My post was a pretty long one and not so monotonous as the short ones. I made just twelve rounds during my first two hours and nine during the second, due to the relief coming over very promptly. Two of the posts were in front of the guard house, guarding prisoners and as these posts were only about 15 or 20 feet long it must have been pretty tiresome for the guard before the two hours were up. Lieut. Saunders is right, you certainly have plenty of time to think of all sorts of things. I had a pretty quiet post and as my first trick was before challenging hours I had nothing much to do but keep moving and watch for fire, etc.

But the second trick was different. I had to stop people "on or near my post" and "allow no one to pass without proper authority." Well, I had been on the job about two minutes when I saw a great big husky guy coming along smoking a big cigar. It was away down on the lower corner of my post and right next to a swamp and in a pretty lonesome spot, so I took a firm grasp of my gun, threw back my shoulders and stretched up so as to look as big as possible. But he kept right on coming, so I shouted out, real tough like, "Halt." He did all right and then taking a firmer grip on my gun I had him advance until quite close, when I halted him again. I felt kind of relieved when he stopped as gentle as a lamb. I gave him the once over and then crumpled up for all of my bravery had been wasted. It was one of the men of my own squad who had been relieved at post No. 5, and was allowed to cut across lots to the guard house instead of going in with the old guard.

I got thinking how things of late have been moving by 2. That must be my lucky number. I came down here with the second contingent, this is the second branch of the service I have been in, I was on the second guard trick of Co. F, had post No. 2, and was the second relief. This is one sort of things you get thinking about just before the new guard comes to relieve you. Everything is so quiet your thoughts are not disturbed and you think of everything from the folks at home to the moon and the men "over there" in the trenches and wonder how long it will be before you are there too.

After my first experience I decided I did not take much nerve to be a sentinel, especially when the most desperate character you stopped was one of your best friends, so when I saw the next man approach I did not tighten the grip on my gun. Oh, joy, it was the officer of the day, speaking about at 2:45 a. m. to see if we were on our job. I was, and after spilling off a couple of my special orders he said "All right" and asked about how things were on my post and then passed a few remarks about the night and duty and went along. He did not ask for general orders, but I suppose if I had not known the specials he would have asked me everything he could think of.

Sunday a great many are away on leave and have to be in by 5:30 for reveille Monday morning. Of course the boys make the best of it and come straying in at all hours of the night. Along about 3:30 things began to liven up. Lights began to spring up in the kitchen as the cooks turned out and began rustling the hash for breakfast, the automobiles began to buzz into camp with people returning from leave and things began to take on life. Of course I had to stop all of these people who came across my post. It seemed only a few minutes and the relief came out for me.

I'll bet when the thermometer gets down to zero and the snow flies it won't be so nice, especially on a dark night. I really enjoyed it last night. It is about the first time I ever had when I could quietly enjoy the moonlight for four solid hours without being disturbed.

We have two prisoners, one for absence without leave and one for being drunk. They are in the guard house. Also yesterday a large quantity of booze was seized by the officers in the barracks of a company "regular" who was sergeant. He was helpless and is now in the guard house. I see where they get another sergeant in that company.

A lot of regulars came in and were distributed the other day. They will act as sergeants, etc., in the companies to teach the new men.

Today was spent in hikes and manual of arms. I am going over to the canteen to get a little of ink.

I suppose from four experience at

MISS BRUYN GOES TO MT. HOLYOKE

Ulster County Charities Aid Agent to Have Leave of Absence for Three Months to Teach Economics in College.

Miss Gertrude Bruyn, for the past two years in charge of the Ulster County Charities Aid, has obtained a leave of absence from the state for three months during which time she will act as a member of the faculty of the Economic Department of Mt. Holyoke College, of which institution she is a graduate.

Miss Bruyn was graduated from Kingston Academy in 1910 and from Mt. Holyoke in 1914. After completing her studies in college Miss Bruyn took up a special course in economics at the New York School of Philanthropy.

In June, 1915, Miss Bruyn assumed charge of the local branch of the State Charities Aid, which position she now holds.

Excellent progress has been made and most satisfactory results obtained among the dependent children of the county under Miss Bruyn's most efficient supervision.

Miss Bruyn will assume her new work Monday, November 5. Her many acquaintances and friends in this city wish her the best of success while she is in this way doing her bit for Uncle Sam.

During Miss Bruyn's absence the work of the local society will be in charge of Miss Grace Hallock, who has been Miss Bruyn's assistant for some time.

NAVY LEAGUE KNITTERS THANKED

The Kingston Branch of the Navy League, Mrs. F. J. Higginson, chairman; Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker, secretary; Mrs. Williams Carter, treasurer; Mrs. Anna V. Kenyon, chairman of the Knitting Committee; which has already equipped with sets of knitted articles submarine chaser No. 75, which was acknowledged and the acknowledgment published in The Freeman some time ago, has further equipped submarine chaser No. 76. The articles were all sent through Rear Admiral Nathaniel Usher at the Brooklyn navy yard, and the following letter has been received, in thanks for the articles sent to No. 76:

New York, the 23 October, 1917.
Centre naval de New York.
Lieut. de Broton, executive officer to Madam Anna V. Kenyon.
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Madam:
The sailors who received the sweaters you sent them require me to thank you heartily for this very useful gift. I am personally very and deeply touched by your kind present. I am sure the sailors when cold at sea will remember the too much amiable person who enables them to endure comfortably their rough life and make a better fight.

With many thanks again, please receive, dear madam, my respects.

(Signed) J. C. BRETON.

The local organization wishes to publicly thank all who have helped in making the knitted articles, and would acknowledge at the time 5 pairs of wristlets and 1 sweater from the Girls' Friendly Society of Holy Cross Church; 2 pairs of wristlets from Mrs. Wright; 1 scarf from Miss Julia Bruyn; 1 sweater and 2 scarfs from Mrs. Thomas Trampier and Mrs. C. S. Preston.

The league now asks the local knitters that they devote themselves to the making of helmets, as they are especially needed.

Injured at Alen.

Floyd Sprig of Saugerties, who is employed at the Alsen Cement Company, had his right thumb injured while uncoupling cars Wednesday.

Wrightstown you think I must be broke already. Not so. By trading at the regimental canteen we get things at the same price you would anywhere. That is, such as candy, peanuts, ice cream cones, cakes and crackers, also tobacco and cigarettes. The things they stick us on are things like clothes brushes, etc. They have pennants of Camp Dix, worth about 50 cents and charge from 75 cents to $1 each. But so far as chocolate bars and crackers and cakes in boxes, they are no higher than at home.

Here are some actual tragedies of camp. One man deserted and got caught and is now in prison. He was of the cold feet kind who got scared when the France stuff was started. Another up from the artillery also deserted and was caught. He got six months in guard house and a fine of $125.

I have investigated and got these from men who were in the companies and knew the men. You may as well know the truth, the bad along with the good.

There are a number of cases of cold feet and if the boys ever go across there will be several desertions I'll bet. But these are the exceptions—the almost negligible minority.

HURLED FROM AUTO RUNNING BOARD

Michael Fay and Frank Nard, both of East Kingston, were hurled from the running board of the touring car owned by Carmine DeCicco of the same place about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon as the machine turned the corner of Clifton and Flatbush avenues, directly in front of the City Home. Both men were employed at the Herbert Brush Company. The machine was being driven by Anthony DeCicco, a son of the owner, and in the car were James and Joseph Neron, and Theresa, Rose and Emma DeCicco, children, who are students in St. Mary's School and were on the way home after school. Fay and Nard had jumped on the running board of the car contemplating riding but a short distance further from the scene of the accident, where they had expected to meet the East Kingston stage. Fay was the more seriously injured of the two and was conveyed to the Kingston City Hospital in the city ambulance, where his wounds were dressed and he later returned home. He was badly cut about the face where he struck the road and considerably shaken up. Nard escaped with a few bruises.

FILL QUOTAS UNDER OLD REGULATIONS

No Changes in Regulations Governing National Army Members Until Enlistment First Quotas Are Chosen Under Present Regulations.

Changes which have been proposed for the selection of members of the National Army under the selective draft law will not affect any men who are to be selected for the first quota of each local exemption division. No new regulations have gone in effect, as a matter of fact, but have been only proposed.

The fact that division quotas must be filled under the existing regulations is emphasized in a circular letter issued to local boards by the adjutant general, which says:

"Inquiries from several states indicate that the impression exists that the proposed change in the regulations involving classification of registrants will be effective before the present quota is in camp. This impression is a mistaken one. The entire first quota will be chosen under the regulations now in force. As the new regulations are as yet in tentative form and will not be retroactive it is manifestly inadvisable to answer questions concerning them or to construe or interpret them at this time."

Local Boards Cannot Act.

Where a change in the status of dependency occurs, local boards are informed that:

"The provost marshal general has stated that in a case where dependency has arisen since a registrant was sent to camp, no provision has been made and none will be made for action by the boards. Recourse is application through military channels for an administrative discharge."

No Reconstruction Yet.

Local boards are also informed that:

"The provost marshal general states that local boards may not, at present, order an operation to make a registrant physically fit for service. The surgeon general is considering a plan to reconstruct cases which have been rejected because of minor defects."

DISTRICT BOARD ACTS ON FOUR CASES

The district board for the Southern District of New York has certified back for military service to the local board for Division No. 1 of Ulster county the name of Philip Janiger of Rosendale. Janiger's order number in the draft is 517, and his red ink number is 2,025.

BRITISH TROOPS NEAR JERUSALEM

By Telegram to The Freeman
London, Nov. 1.—Boersheba, forty miles southwest of Jerusalem, in Palestine, has been occupied by British troops, it was announced today.

ACCUSE FOUR MORE OF VIOLATING LAW

The arrest of four men in the southern part of the county on Wednesday and their giving bail for future appearance before Judge Jenkins at county court chambers disclosed the fact that the last grand jury included four more excuse violation indictments among the sealed indictments which were reported to the court.

The men arrested were A. Wesley Mackey and Sylvester Canfield, both of whom conduct hotels at Highland; John O. Latta of Elting's Corners, who formerly conducted a hotel in the village of Lloyd; and Edward Ennist, a bartender at McCabe's Hotel at Marlborough.

The town of Lloyd being a no-license town, it is presumed that the excuse violation charged is selling liquor without a license. Marlborough is a license town and McCabe's hotel has a license, so it is presumed that the charge against Ennist is for a Sunday sale. The indictments will not, of course be opened until the defendants are arraigned in court.

The four defendants were represented by A. D. Lent of Highland and each furnished bail in the sum of $1,000.

It is By "Preparedness" It's Big Enough To Win

The Nickel-and-Dimes Stores of S. Baker & Son Break
Strangle-Hold Prices

By The Freeman's (Once Mysterious) Mr. Fox.

War Prices sailing through the trade channels of Kingston founded like a schooner on the rocks when they attempted to land at No. 642 Broadway and No. 7 East Strand. And thereby is a Reason!

When not many years ago S. Baker & Son invested liberally in this chain of "Five, Ten and Twenty-Five" cents stores those who afterwards were their best customers were shocked at the audacity of cheap prices!

But S. Baker & Son's instincts played them no prank. They knew that trade needs a balance—a buffer against high prices!

Many things needed badly and other articles made too costly for regular trade are commonly purchased in these stores.

From time to time S. Baker & Son have enlarged both stores, finally leasing a warehouse and now wholesaling.

And thus the business has grown like a fourteen-year-old lad. Now it is big enough to combat Deadly War Prices. It is in itself "Preparedness."

S. Baker & Son with all their optimism had never dreamt of how much it would serve the interests of the public "some day." Nobody anticipated the war and War Prices that have come on fiercely attacking trade and threatening homes.

Because S. Baker & Son have wisely "Prepared" their gallant host of "Five, Ten and Twenty-Five," long ago mobilized, are destroying invading prices and giving many families great relief.

S. Baker & Son's chain of stores always steadied prices and protected all who sought protection. This is true of prices on kitchen utensils; household and other light hardware; as well as of complete lines of crockery, glassware, aluminum ware and toys.

Underwear for this winter has been going higher and higher. S. Baker & Son, stocked up as they are with men's, women's and children's underwear that wears and is warm and is of good weight at regular prices, have routed war prices that threatened to deprive our poor of underwear.

It is the same with other household and personal necessities. These Red Front stores are the only "Five, Ten and Twenty-Five" on the Strand and the largest and only completely stocked "Five, Ten and Twenty-Five" on Broadway.—Advertisement.

AT KAPLAN'S REDUCE

HIGH COST OF LIVING

If you had one of those Dockash stoves and ranges that you can see demonstrated at Kaplan's on the Strand any day, you would save money. It is claimed they produce heat equal to any other stove or range on the consumption of twenty-five per cent less fuel. One of these stoves for heating as well as the range will help reduce your cost of living twenty-five per cent.

Many families have traded with Kaplan for years. Many have tried these stoves and endorse all that is claimed for them. You should see the Dockash gas and coal combination range Kaplan will demonstrate to you. The price of coal is uncertain. It may go very high. It may be unobtainable. With this now Dockash range when your coal bin is empty you turn on the gas.

You don't have to buy any one make of stove from Kaplan. He will show you the Household, Regal and Rojo, the Alert and New Era, the Triplex Bengal, Quick Twin and others.

If you have to replace any furnishings, heaters or ranges, or instead now ones you will wisely give your order to Kaplan, now while fine weather is on. HIGHLAND.

Highland, Oct. 31.—The poverty party held Monday evening by the Order of Eastern Star was not very largely attended. It was stormy and the suffrage party was on some evening on M. E. Church lawn and there were some other affairs to detract and it is hard to attend so many affairs, yet those who were present enjoyed the social time. There was a box lunch, each one present prepared a lunch for two and the Stars were kept busy eating and talking over the topics of the times.

Tuesday evening there was a cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Washington avenue.

She was a good talker and we presume she converted some over who were opposed to the suffrage side, but after election the story will be read and told whether they were victorious or not from this place. Just before 8 o'clock the speaker was wafted in an automobile at a high rate of speed for New Paltz, where she was to talk on the same topic, Suffrage.

But just bear this in mind: no matter what "system" you install, the boiler is the vital thing.

If you want to come around and talk it over this evening, we'll stay down.

It Was Some Contrast.

Of all the masqueraders who paraded the streets on Halloween night there were none who attracted so much attention as one lady who wore a silk mask costume of a very elaborate style, resembling one of the rich court costumes that we see featured in some of the old paintings. While her escort was costumed as a tramp and he certainly looked as if he was down and out. There were so many patches on his coat and trousers that it would have been a task to count them. His hat looked as if it might have been the style about the period that Washington crossed the Delaware. The "court lady" and the "tramp" surely made a strange contrast.

LET GOOD ENOUGH ALONE.

Even for an "off year" but little if any interest, has been shown so far in the present political campaign, and the closing days bid fair to be as quiet as those which have gone before. This is due to the fact that the Canfield administration has proved an efficient one, and the people generally do not seem inclined to risk a change in administration by electing an untried man to fill the important office of mayor. With the election of Mayor Canfield assured the voters should not overlook the fact that it is also important to have a board of aldermen who will work in harmony with the mayor for the best interests of the city, and should see to it that the men named by the Republican party in the various wards are elected to office. The Republican party, realizing the fact that the head of the board of aldermen should be a man capable of assisting the mayor in his plans for a better Kingston, selected Samuel M. Watts as its candidate for the office of alderman-at-large. Mr. Watts is well known throughout the city as a man of keen business judgment who has always been active in civic affairs and is qualified to fill the office of alderman-at-large. One of the most important offices in the city is the new office of judge of the city court which calls for the election of a man who has had practical experience in the law. Such a man is Recorder Andrew J. Lang whose three years' experience as recorder has fitted him to carry on the work of the city court in the interest of the public. The work of Mayor Canfield and Recorder Lang has been constantly before the public for the past few years. They are men of experience. That the city appreciates the work they have done will be shown by the handsome majorities given them Election Day.

There is no taxpayer in Ulster County, unless he be a hopelessly bigoted partisan, who would like to go back to those dark days when the Democratic party was in control here and both "honest graft" and the regular old-fashioned dishonest graft were in full bloom. We have no desire to rake up ancient scandals, but all but our youngest voters have a vivid recollection of the incidents of which county jail construction and county poor farm management were samples. The clean and efficient management which the Republican party has given us for about a decade has been without a flaw. The only hope of the Democrats to regain control of county affairs lies in the tendency of voters to forget. Let us show that we have good memories. Voters for Mr. Hartshorn for Superintendent of the Poor of Ulster County and for the various Republican candidates for supervisor are votes for good government.

The food conservation cards which have been distributed by the Ulster County Committee representing the National Food Administration ought to be signed and turned in before tomorrow night. The pledge which householders are asked to sign does not bind anybody to go hungry or go without a well balanced diet. It is only a promise to use common sense in conserving our food supply. It is better for anybody's health to consume the more perishable kinds of food in their season, and sagacious people do it anyway. Only the thoughtless will eat principally of wheat and meats at this time, when there is so much to tempt the palate but which cannot well be transported for military use. A good many people are apt to say to themselves that there is no special use in signing the cards which have been provided, on the same principle that one can stop drinking without signing a pledge, but this is a mistake. The more cards that are signed the more fashionable will conservation become, and fashion is one of the most powerful influences known to mankind.

From the moment that this country was declared to be in a state of war with Germany, Governor Whitman and the administrative state officers have been in constant touch with the situation and the legislature has been prompt to enact enabling legislation whenever needed. This close, intelligent team work is responsible for the proud position

New York State holds today in the country. Its continuance demands a safe Republican majority in both houses of the Legislature. Do your part in insuring a Republican majority in the Assembly in 1918. Vote for Joel Brink.

A prominent writer laments that we are forgetting Dickens and missing the point of the allusions to his characters that were once household words. A more serious lament could be based on this generation's forgetfulness of Shakespeare, the Greek classics and even the Bible, with consequent lack of appreciation of the powerful simile and metaphors derived therefrom. The multitude now seeking mental pabulum only in the "movies" and modern novels little dreams of the literary treasures beyond the ken.

NOT ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

Citizens' League is in Charge of the Howard Campaign.

Mr. Editor:
I note in a recent issue of The Freeman that one of your correspondents mentions a meeting addressed by Frank E. Howard as being under the auspices of the "Anti-Saloon League." Allow me to correct this statement. That organization has nothing to do with the campaign to make Ulster county dry. In fact it has never done anything for this county but to collect money to be used elsewhere.
This campaign is under the auspices of the Citizens' League of Ulster county, and was planned before its president, Dr. C. O. Sahler, passed away.
While the league has been sorely crippled by his death, they are trying to fully carry out the original plan. Several have responded to our financial needs and we trust that others will. The campaign now on surpasses any ever held in our county. Six towns are hopelessly dry, but in the other fourteen the battle royal is on. If the leaders in these towns do their best, and there are no slackers, every town will go dry. The great trouble heretofore has been that many who would vote dry if they voted at all, failed to vote; and thus the town would be lost. We are quite sure if the county, outside our city, votes dry, Kingston itself will vote dry April 16 of next year, when, for the first time, they will be permitted to vote.
P. N. CHASE,
Secretary and Treasurer of Citizens' League.

It is hoped by the postmaster of this village that letter writers will not forget the change in postage from two to three cents for letters and two cents for postals. This is a gentle reminder, lest you forget and wonder why your letters did not go.

Will the girl who removed the door mat from the front porch of Mrs. Ernest Hutchings on Tuesday evening kindly return it to save her parents further trouble?

The Liberty Loan committee reports that the subscriptions to the bond issue amounted to over $130,000, which is $4,000 more than the village and town allotment of $126,000. This shows that New Paltz is far from asleep in the duties of patriotic citizens.

There was a good sized audience comprising voters of a all party affiliations. William C. DeWitt, the first speaker, dwelt upon the Democratic county candidates, urging up all the need of electing them. He was followed by the Democratic candidate for assemblyman, Mr. Truman of Lake Katrine, who describes himself as neither a sphinx, a jelly fish or an echo. Mr. Truman was especially so that a much better opportunity will be furnished to hear him. The latest passed Township School Law and the State Constitution measure. Mr. Truman was followed by Mr. Meagher so well known to all people in this section. Mr. Meagher used up his five minutes very quickly and ended them by easily into a longer period, until

WHAT SHANDAKEN SHOULD CONSIDER

Facts to be Heeded in View of New York City's Efforts to Enact Adverse Sewer Legislation.

In voting next Tuesday, the voters of the town of Shandaken should consider well as to which candidates will be best fitted to protect their property interests.

For several years past, the city of New York, as the inhabitants of the town know, has endeavored to obtain legislation which would give them rights in the Esopus valley, and especially in the town of Shandaken, without proper compensation being paid by the city for such rights, among which measures was the so called sewer bill. The senator, assemblyman, board of supervisors and county attorney have continuously fought these measures and due to their efforts, such legislation thus far has been prevented. The fact that these officials have been Republican is significant, in light of the fact that the Legislature has, for the past few years, also been Republican.

It is pretty well recognized that up-state, so called, is Republican while the city of New York is Democratic, and wields its influence through the party which is controlled by Tammany. Tammany may again win in the city of New York and if it does, without doubt the efforts of the city to obtain legislation affecting the town of Shandaken will be renewed. Should the representatives from the town of Shandaken and the assembly district in which it is situated be Democratic, the results might be and very probably will be disastrous to the town.

The voters must answer for themselves the question to whether or not they want Tammany's claws upon the town. To be absolutely safe and to prevent such a condition arising a Republican supervisor and a Republican member of assembly should be elected to safeguard their interests and to work for the interests of the town.

James H. Cruickshank, the Republican candidate for supervisor and Joel Brink, the Republican candidate for member of assembly, are eminently fitted for such a task.

Mr. Brink's record through the past year and his activity against the so-called health and sewer bills are well known.

Mr. Cruickshank will be as active as Mr. Brink and as untiring in his efforts to protect Shandaken's interests. He is vitally interested in having considerable property interests in the town of Shandaken which would be injured by New York city's desired legislation. It is also especially evident from Mr. Cruickshank's recent efforts to prevent the city of New York from further killing the trout in the stream below Phoenixia and in his efforts to cause the prosecution of the persons responsible therefore that he will look out for the town. He appears to be the right man for supervisor and will have the interest of the people always in view.

A HEART STORY.

By WILLARD CHALLONER.

"One hundred dollars!" exuberated Warren Deane in a positive burst of ecstasy.

"Two hundred, my dear fellow," corrected Rupert Thrall, picture broker. "Why do you minimize a really pretentious streak of fortune?"

"Because I agreed to give you an even half of whatever 'The Masqueraders' sold for."

"We will waive that in this instance," Thrall asserted. "I've got faith in you, in your ability and in your final fame and fortune, therefore I insist on financing you, to an extent, and making up for it when I am selling your pictures at thousands instead of hundreds. So I decline to take my commission, provided you follow my directions explicitly as to the investment of the money."

"And that is?" submitted Warren.

"Take a vacation."

Warren Deane had been a home boy, living a quiet life with his widowed mother until she died. Alone in the world, he followed the bent of his mind in the direction of art and literature.

The sale of "The Masqueraders" was his first streak of luck. He followed the advice of the only friend he had found in the great wilderness of the city, the picture broker, and two days later was established in a quiet village boarding house at Virden, and roaming the hills with easel and color box, seeking subjects and studies.

One morning he was sketching out in crayon a dell outline upon the canvas, when a little miss of about five passed along a woodland path fringing the deep gully beyond. A great bushy dog frisked about her. Her charming face, her graceful bow attracted him and irresistibly his eyes followed her. Suddenly, appalled, he sprang to his feet from the camp stool. In switching about her, the dog brushed too close to the child—she toppled, and went out of sight over the edge of the cliff.

Shocked, half-stunned, shuddering, Warren ran to the ledge. A great sigh of hope rent his lips as, five feet down, he saw the child wedged against a slanting rock and crying with fright and clinging to a frail bush. Beneath yawned an abyss.

"Don't move! Don't let go!" cried Warren. He was trembling all over as he let himself over the ledge. He uttered a gasp of joy as his feet were anchored. Slowly lifting the child, he pushed her beyond the ledge, climbed up himself, and fell upon a log, breathless and exhausted.

Warren soothed her and carried her to where his easel stood, and placed her on the camp stool.

"Now you must rest, and then go right home, and don't ever get so near the ravine again," he said.

"And I'll tell Maude how good you are, and she'll just love you," prattled the innocent. "And—oh, my! I'll get some more doughnuts and bring them here, and it will be my present, and you are invited. Won't that be grand?"

Warren resumed his work. Sure enough, at the end of two hours the little one reappeared. She carried a paper bag, which she placed carefully on the stool.

"I told sister Maude, and she said I must thank you, and bring you home with me, for her to thank you."

And then little Winnie questioned him about the easel, and his being there, and what was an artist man. He caught her pose with a true artist's eye as, on tip-toe, she held one of the doughnuts above her head, the dog standing on his hind feet and reaching for it.

"Don't move—keep that way," ordered Warren in a fever of enthusiasm, while he sketched the presentation rapidly. "It'll make a canvas of it. That will do."

Warren tried to evade going home with little Winnie, though invited, but she was persistent. When he came to meet Maude Springer, whom he never afterwards forgot, she was all that was lovely, dainty and gentle.

One day at the village he learned that Maude Springer, although she lived humbly, was heiress to one of the largest estates in the district. The same day he packed up his kit disconsolately. He would never tell his love!

"I will not even tell her good-by—it is better to go now, before I suffer more deeply," he mused. "I wonder, though, what she would think if I told her that I loved her, and asked her to become the wife of a poor but devoted suitor, and—"

All of this was what Warren Deane wrote as a story in the woodland dell that sunny, last afternoon in paradise. It was his true heart story. He left the sheets across the camp stool, as he proceeded some distance away to take down and pack up a hammock he had strung between two trees in a shady nook.

He came back to get his other traps together, little knowing that during his absence Maude Springer had visited the spot. She read the pathetic heart story. Then she took up its last page and added—"finis!"

And this was the "finis" that Warren Deane found added to his true heart story:

"—and Maude Springer would have said 'yes,' and the bright desire of her life would be to lay at the feet of the man she loved, not only her loyal devotion, but her fortune, to help him to give to the world some great work of art that would make him famous."

When Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over an oil lamp in her Chicago barn she started a fire that made history. LUTHERANS HERE IN COLONIAL DAYS

Oldest Building in United States in Which Lutheran Services Were Held Stands in Kingston. According to Pastor Kretzmann—Light Sheds on Local History.

In connection with the observance of the quadricentennial of the Reformation, services are being held each evening this week in the Livingston Street Evangelical Lutheran Church. At the service on Monday evening the speaker was the Rev. Karl Kretzmann, author of "The Oldest Lutheran Church in America," a noted student of history, whose topic was "Lutherans in Kingston and the Upper Hudson Valley in Colonial Days." His address was of great interest to students of local history and covered several facts not readily accessible that the speaker had obtained from original documents and records. As a contribution to local history Pastor Kretzmann's address is of great value and is, therefore, printed in full:

Throughout the length and breadth of the U. S. Lutherans are meeting during this week to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, when an unknown Saxon monk posted theses or sentences on the door of a church in a small town in a country across the seas.

But for that act born out of the anxious solicitude of an earnest pastor's heart for the salvation of his poor deluded parishioners and other priest-ridden souls there would be today no church free from the bondage of well-nigh heathen superstitions and no church proclaiming the free grace of God in Christ Jesus; there would be no freedom of conscience and religion; there would be no U. S. of America with its democratic institutions, its political, civil and religious liberties—but for that act darkness would still cover the nation, the earth and gross darkness the people.

The blows which resounded against the door of the Castle Church at Wittenberg from the ringing of the Liberty Bell not for one nation only but for all nations of the earth.

It is fitting, therefore, that not only the church which bears the name of Luther but the whole Protestant world should unite in these days to commemorate not so much the man Luther as the great principles which by the grace of God he promulgated, principles which are the very foundation stones of modern civilization. The Reformation, says James Bryce, former ambassador of Great Britain to the U. S., "revived the standard of civil as well as religious liberty." And James Freeman Clark writes: "Luther is the real author of modern liberty of thought and action, the great founder of modern civilization and of pure religion." Our own Charles Dudley Warner said at the quadricentennial of Luther's birthday, November 10, 1883, "The day of Hartford, the state of Connecticut, the United States are today what they are largely because of the life of Martin Luther."

If that be true—and who would doubt it?—then the church which bears the name and upholds the principles of Luther is not a foreign church in this country where these principles have found their ripest fruition. The American principles and ideals as voiced in the constitution of the U. S. are the equality of all men before the law, the right of every man to the pursuit of life, health, liberty and happiness, the principles of genuine democracy have been the principles of the Lutheran Church since the days of the Reformation. The Lutheran Church is an American Church from its birth.

But she is also American by history. Her members were here in the dawn of American history as far back as the foundation stones of this land of liberty. Their very love of liberty had driven from their homes in Europe, the North Germans during the Thirty Years' War, the Palatines during the war of the Spanish Succession, the Salzburgers down in Georgia during the persecution of a Roman Catholic archbishop, their love of liberty had driven them to protest against the exploitation of the colonists on the part of the British crown a half century before the Declaration of Independence, and they wanted liberty not as a matter of policy but of principle; they wanted it not only for themselves—as for those who came to this country after them—but for their children and for all who came to these shores to share freedom of conscience for themselves and the first chance they got persecuted others whose wrongs were not fully with them, then granted it to others also; it is a fact which has never to my knowledge been sufficiently brought out by historians that the distinctly Lutheran Colony first established in America, that of the Swedes on the Delaware, in 1638, freedom of worship was granted by the Swedish crown to the Reformed Dutch on the Delaware, while at the same time the Lutherans in the Hudson Valley were persecuted by the Dutch authorities, and some of them were imprisoned for no other reason than their attempt to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience.

The Lutheran Church is a thoroughly American Church. Her members in the early days were called to turn the wilderness, the hunting ground of the Red Man, to a place fit for the habitation of Europeans; they were guardians of the frontier against the Indians and the French along the frontiers of New York and Pennsylvania; they were among the foremost in the great and prosperous cities of the east: New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Albany, Schenectady, and, last but not least, also of Kingston.

Lutherans began to come to the valley of the Hudson soon after Henry Hudson's little "Half Moon" had sailed up the river. It was this same man who built a little fort, 35 feet square, on Castle Island, which is now within the limits of the city of Albany. It was called Fort Nassau and was protected by two large and eleven smaller cannons. On old maps of the shore of the Atlantic you will find to the southeast of the island of Manhattan a small island called "Hendrick Christensen's Island." This island was explored by this intrepid early explorer. Today it is called "No Man's Land." Thus the world's first.

The Dutch called the valley of the Hudson and adjacent territory New Netherland. Holland was the chief seafaring nation of that time, and it was a natural thing that many Lutherans from northern Germany and the Scandinavian countries should make their way to the seaports of Holland and across the ocean to the Hudson Valley, especially on the Van Rensselaer estate near Albany. From there a number of them drifted back to the little town on Manhattan Island, then called New Amsterdam, and later on also to Kingston.

Prominent among the early Lutherans in the Hudson Valley was Jonas Bronck, a merchant from the Dutch colony of Bronx Park, Bronxville, etc. He was not a Dutchman, as is commonly supposed, but a Dane, and the earliest record of him is as a "pious Lutheran" from the vessel named "The Fire of Troy," and settled near the town of New Amsterdam, which he built for himself in the lower part of the present Bronx Borough, he named from his Bible, "Emmanuel." Here a treaty of peace was signed with the Indians, March 24, 1662. He died in 1663. In the inventory of his estate we find: "German Bible, one of the Psalms, Luther's complete catechism, and many other religious and scientific works—100 books, one of which was a book of hymns, which he built for himself in the lower part of the present Bronx Borough, he named from his Bible, "Emmanuel." Here a treaty of peace was signed with the Indians, March 24, 1662. He died in 1663.

That these Lutherans, even under Dutch regime, made no secret of their faith is attested by a Jesuit priest, Father Jogues, who visited the colony in 1663. He writes: "There is no exercise of religion in the settlement except the Calvinist, and the orders declare that none but Calvinists be admitted; but this point is not observed, for beside Calvinists there are in the settlement Catholics, English Puritans, Lutheran, Anabaptists, and others."

First Lutheran Church in New York. Only a few years later the Lutherans on Manhattan had banded together and formed the "Congregation of the United Brethren of the Faith," and in 1668, within 102 years of the death of Luther, a delegation was sent to the consistory of the Lutheran Church at Amsterdam in Holland to have public services in the matter of a pastor was sent, perhaps because it was well known that none but the "only true Reformed Church" was permitted to hold public services in New Netherland. At any rate the Lutherans, who at this time numbered about 100 families, tried to remove this objection by appealing in 1668 to the states of Holland, to the West India Company (which was in immediate control of the colony) and to Governor Peter Stuyvesant, the Dutch Reformed dominion in New Amsterdam, Megapolensis and Driscoll, these appeals were unfavorably acted upon on both sides of the ocean. When the Lutherans began to hold reading services under the leadership of Paulus Schrick, Stuyvesant prohibited their meetings on pain of fine and imprisonment. As a result of this edict a number of Lutherans were cast into prison, in his persecutions that even his superiors in Holland rebuked him for it.

The first Lutheran pastor in New Netherland. Early in July, 1667, the first Lutheran pastor, Johannes Gutwasser, arrived on Manhattan Island. The Lutherans rejoiced, but old Peter Stuyvesant scowled. Gutwasser was named before court and commanded to return to Holland by the next ship. He protested that he had been sent by the Lutheran Consistory in Holland to take charge of the Lutheran church in New Netherland, and that he had been granted freedom of worship; they ought to have it here, too. Stuyvesant decided to wait for further advice from Holland. When these had not arrived after a lapse of two months, the Lutheran dominion was again brought before the court and told to go home. Then the members of his flock in New Amsterdam signed a petition praying the governor to permit them to retain their pastor. This appeal is a most important document in the early history of Lutheranism in this state. It is dated October 10, 1667, and asks the governor to permit Gutwasser to remain until further orders from the "Wijlge Majestaten" in Holland and from the "Noble Lords Directors of the Privileged West India Company." This petition of the Lutheran church was not granted. Domine Gutwasser was ordered to return to Holland. He managed, however, to remain in hiding and to assist to his people in their most difficult years, until he was finally thrown into prison and forced to return to Holland in the early summer of 1669.

Lutherans in Kingston. The first two signatures to that "Lutheran Petition" of 1667 were Mathias Capito and Christian Niessen. Capito was evidently a German and possibly a descendant of Wolfgang Fluricus Capito, who lived in the time of the Reformation and whom Luther calls "the most faithful servant of the church at Strasbourg and his dear brother in Christ." Capito had come to New Amsterdam about the year 1647 as supercargo of a ship in the service of the West India Company. He was a well educated man and a fluent writer and soon held a responsible position in the company's stores in New Amsterdam. Afterward he became secretary of Stuyvesant and seems to have been a kind of notary public and expert accountant; for in 1669 Stuyvesant sent him down to the Swedish colonies on the Delaware which had come under Dutch rule a few years before, as a commissary. After he had completed his task there the old wood-crafted governor sent him on another errand, this time to the city of Wiltwyck, in the Esopus country.

He need not tell you that late-born dwellers in the city of Kingston that the original name of your town was Wiltwyck and that the country round about was called "the Esopus" in the days of the Dutch. This region was first settled by people from Albany county in 1652 under the leadership of an Englishman, Thomas Chambers, as we are told in the history of Ulster county by your townsman, the Hon. Alphonso T. Clearwater. In 1653, on the advice of Governor Stuyvesant, the settlers moved closer together and built a stockade about the village. The plot enclosed was the northern part of the city, bounded on the north by Front Street. The first school for many of the village was Rudolf Swartout. His wife's name was Eva Bratt, a member of a Lutheran family, who for many years were members of the old Lutheran Church at Albany.

It was to this little village of Wiltwyck that Capito came in 1660 to act as village clerk and pastor on the behalf of the council of war. He kept the court minutes for several years after Swartout himself had kept them and was the more scholarly writer of the two (Oppenheims). The records which he kept are still in the office of the county clerk of Ulster county.

The Second Schout of Kingston a Lutheran.

From 1663 to 1664 Capito was acting schout or mayor of the town. In the massacre of Kingston, June 7, 1663, there was among other victims, Capito's wife, a Lutheran woman from Hamburg, and Capito's own health was broken by the subsequent privations. He seems to have died in Kingston about 1667.

A Lutheran in Command of the First Garrison at Kingston.

The second signature to the "Lutheran Petition" of 1667 was that of Christian Niessen from Holstein in northern Germany. In 1650 he was sent to Kingston by Stuyvesant as sergeant of a company of soldiers to protect the village against the attacks of the Indians, and in 1661 he was in command of the garrison. Governor Stuyvesant, little as he had of the faith of the Lutherans, still gives credit to the faithfulness of this Lutheran soldier, attesting that he had attended to his duties with great diligence and faithfulness since his appointment.

The Hoffman Family.

The first Lutheran in Kingston of whom we have a record had come here before Capito and Niessen. That was Martin Hoffman, of the Hoffman family in Finland, recently mentioned frequently in the despatches from the eastern front. He was in Kingston in the year when the village stockade was built (1653) and with other residents joined in the war against the Indians. It was he, who, according to the old records, on September 23, 1657, warned the village of a party of Indians, who were on their way to attack the village, and saved the inhabitants from bloodshed.

That Martin Hoffman was a Lutheran we know from the fact that in January, 1672, he received a pass from the English governor of New York, permitting him to go down to the Swedish colonies on the Delaware for the purpose of collecting the benevolences of such of the Lutheran profession in those parts; these funds were to be used in the first church building of the Lutherans in New York. The original of this pass is still in the possession of the old Lutheran Church down in New York City, now called The Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Martin.

Martin Hoffman was evidently the owner of a ship, perhaps a number of them, for according to the old records we find him sometimes in New York, then in Albany, then on the Delaware. But he seems to have made Kingston his permanent home. He had a stockade here in the old house, which he built and which is still standing, on Front street, and is known to this day as the "Hoffman House." Down in the archives of the oldest Lutheran Church in America (St. Matthew's of New York) there is an ancient church record in which Domine Justus Falckner, in 1732, made this entry in Dutch: "Anno 1712 im Sommer is in Sopos overleden Martin Hoffman, een seer oud afgestorven man." (In the year 1712, in the summer there passed away in Esopus Martin Hoffman, a very old man.)

This Martin Hoffman was the ancestor of the famous Hoffman family in America, which numbered among its members preachers, lawyers, statesmen, authors and college presidents. One of the family was engaged to marry Washington Irving. Governor John Thompson Hoffmann of New York (about 1850) was a member of the same family, and some of the Hoffmanns are also related to the Hoffmanns. If you go down to New York and visit the Cathedral of St. John, there is a Hoffman on the side of the altar, now building for at least twenty years, you will find there a giant monolith column to the east of the chancel, erected in memory of Eugene Augustus Hoffmann, dean of the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church. Dean Hoffmann (1808-1870) was a member of this family.

There were other Lutherans who helped to write the history of the early days but time does not permit me to enumerate them.

But did they have a pastor here in those days? The question is interesting, and I think it might be answered in the affirmative, at least on grounds of very strong circumstantial evidence.

In the list of victims of the Kingston massacre of June 7, 1663, there is also the name of Domine Justus Falckner, a Dutch Reformed dominie at Kingston was Domine Hermannus Blom. There was only one preacher by the name of Laers in the Dutch colonies at that time, and it is possible that Domine Justus Falckner, who was a Swedish Lutheran pastor down on the Delaware whose full name was Lars Falckner, was the one who preached the Lutheran faith in New Netherland. We know that the Lutheran ministers from Sweden and Denmark who ministered to the Lutherans in the Hudson Valley secretly. We know that in 1660 the Lutherans in Albany were collecting funds for the salary of a Lutheran minister; they would hardly have done that if they had not enjoyed the ministrations of a pastor; and that pastor must have been Domine Lars, because there was no other Lutheran pastor in America in 1660. Moreover, Domine Justus Falckner, a commissary to the Delaware had become well acquainted with Domine Lars. We know that Domine Lars's wife had left him about that time (1660) when the massacre of Kingston occurred. Domine Lars's charge on the Delaware was supplied by a young man by the name of Abelus Zeinkoorn, who had landed in New Amsterdam in the previous fall.

It is certain that the successor of Arens in New York, Domine Justus Falckner, to Kingston and the territory lying behind it. He was here for instance in March, 1669, and baptized Christian, the son of Mr. Baunes La Grande de la Motte's house. The most interesting item to the Lutherans of Kingston, however, is this one in the old New York Church record, entered by Falckner: "Baptized, April 22, 1713, at our meeting in the house of Martin Hoffman in Sopos, daughter of Johannes Hoffman and Maria, Hesther. Sponsors: Martin Hoffman and wife, Amerentia, paternal grandfather and grandmother."

This entry shows conclusively that Lutheran services were held in this old town more than 200 years ago; moreover, the old Hoffman House where they were held is the oldest building in the United States still standing in which Lutherans gathered for worship.

When old Martin Hoffman died in 1712 these services ceased, it seems, and we hear no more of Lutherans in Kingston until the middle of the last century.

But in the year 1808 began the great influx of German Lutherans into the upper Hudson Valley. The vanguard of some fifty souls, with their pastor, Joshua Koehert, came to New York City in January, 1709. They with thousands of others had been driven from the Palatinate on the Rhine (Rheinpfalz) by the ravages of the War of the Spanish Succession.

Through the kindness of Queen Anne of England had been transported to America. They were given a tract of land comprising over 2000 acres in New York, the center of the city of Newburgh, and 500 acres of land were set aside by good Queen Anne for the support of a Lutheran pastor and his successors forever. Here they immediately built a church, "the first German Lutheran Church in America."

In the same year (1709) Koehert returned to England leaving his flock in the care of Domine Falckner of New York. When Koehert returned in the summer of 1710 he brought with him several thousand of his countrymen who were settled by the English crown in the upper Hudson Valley, especially at West Camp and East Camp (Gorhamtown). Here they were employed by the English government to prepare naval supplies, especially in the form of tar. Since, however, the government did not care for them in the proper manner, many of them made their way farther into the wilderness and settled in the Schoharie Valley. Others settled farther down the river, in Rhinebeck. Koehert served all these settlements until death took him out of the midst of his labors, June 24, 1718. He was buried in the vestibule of the Lutheran Church at West Camp, where I had an opportunity to see his remains a few years ago. The inscription on his tombstone, which is in German, has often been translated incorrectly. The following is a correct translation:

Know, wanderer, that beneath this stone there rests, beside his Sibylla Charlotte,

the Joshua of the Hitz Germans in North America and their true Lutheran preacher on the east and west side of the Hudson River.

He first arrived in America with L'd Love, Nov. 1707-08, the 1st of January. The second time he came with Col. Hunter, 1710, June 14.

His contemplated journey to England was interrupted by his costly journey to heaven on St. John's Day, 1719.

If thou wouldst know more, inquire in Melancthon's fatherland, who was de Koehert, who Harschias, who Winchenbach.

This Martin Hoffman was the ancestor of the famous Hoffman family in America, which numbered among its members preachers, lawyers, statesmen, authors and college presidents. One of the family was engaged to marry Washington Irving. Governor John Thompson Hoffmann of New York (about 1850) was a member of the same family, and some of the Hoffmanns are also related to the Hoffmanns. If you go down to New York and visit the Cathedral of St. John, there is a Hoffman on the side of the altar, now building for at least twenty years, you will find there a giant monolith column to the east of the chancel, erected in memory of Eugene Augustus Hoffmann, dean of the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church. Dean Hoffmann (1808-1870) was a member of this family.

There were other Lutherans who helped to write the history of the early days but time does not permit me to enumerate them.

But did they have a pastor here in those days? The question is interesting, and I think it might be answered in the affirmative, at least on grounds of very strong circumstantial evidence.

In the list of victims of the Kingston massacre of June 7, 1663, there is also the name of Domine Justus Falckner, a Dutch Reformed dominie at Kingston was Domine Hermannus Blom. There was only one preacher by the name of Laers in the Dutch colonies at that time, and it is possible that Domine Justus Falckner, who was a Swedish Lutheran pastor down on the Delaware whose full name was Lars Falckner, was the one who preached the Lutheran faith in New Netherland. We know that the Lutheran ministers from Sweden and Denmark who ministered to the Lutherans in the Hudson Valley secretly. We know that in 1660 the Lutherans in Albany were collecting funds for the salary of a Lutheran minister; they would hardly have done that if they had not enjoyed the ministrations of a pastor; and that pastor must have been Domine Lars, because there was no other Lutheran pastor in America in 1660. Moreover, Domine Justus Falckner, a commissary to the Delaware had become well acquainted with Domine Lars. We know that Domine Lars's wife had left him about that time (1660) when the massacre of Kingston occurred. Domine Lars's charge on the Delaware was supplied by a young man by the name of Abelus Zeinkoorn, who had landed in New Amsterdam in the previous fall.

It is certain that the successor of Arens in New York, Domine Justus Falckner, to Kingston and the territory lying behind it. He was here for instance in March, 1669, and baptized Christian, the son of Mr. Baunes La Grande de la Motte's house. The most interesting item to the Lutherans of Kingston, however, is this one in the old New York Church record, entered by Falckner: "Baptized, April 22, 1713, at our meeting in the house of Martin Hoffman in Sopos, daughter of Johannes Hoffman and Maria, Hesther. Sponsors: Martin Hoffman and wife, Amerentia, paternal grandfather and grandmother."

This entry shows conclusively that Lutheran services were held in this old town more than 200 years ago; moreover, the old Hoffman House where they were held is the oldest building in the United States still standing in which Lutherans gathered for worship.

When old Martin Hoffman died in 1712 these services ceased, it seems, and we hear no more of Lutherans in Kingston until the middle of the last century.

But in the year 1808 began the great influx of German Lutherans into the upper Hudson Valley. The vanguard of some fifty souls, with their pastor, Joshua Koehert, came to New York City in January, 1709. They with thousands of others had been driven from the Palatinate on the Rhine (Rheinpfalz) by the ravages of the War of the Spanish Succession.

Through the kindness of Queen Anne of England had been transported to America. They were given a tract of land comprising over 2000 acres in New York, the center of the city of Newburgh, and 500 acres of land were set aside by good Queen Anne for the support of a Lutheran pastor and his successors forever. Here they immediately built a church, "the first German Lutheran Church in America."

In the same year (1709) Koehert returned to England leaving his flock in the care of Domine Falckner of New York. When Koehert returned in the summer of 1710 he brought with him several thousand of his countrymen who were settled by the English crown in the upper Hudson Valley, especially at West Camp and East Camp (Gorhamtown). Here they were employed by the English government to prepare naval supplies, especially in the form of tar. Since, however, the government did not care for them in the proper manner, many of them made their way farther into the wilderness and settled in the Schoharie Valley. Others settled farther down the river, in Rhinebeck. Koehert served all these settlements until death took him out of the midst of his labors, June 24, 1718. He was buried in the vestibule of the Lutheran Church at West Camp, where I had an opportunity to see his remains a few years ago. The inscription on his tombstone, which is in German, has often been translated incorrectly. The following is a correct translation:

Know, wanderer, that beneath this stone there rests, beside his Sibylla Charlotte,

the Joshua of the Hitz Germans in North America and their true Lutheran preacher on the east and west side of the Hudson River.

ADDRESS GIVEN BY PROF. PERITZ

At the Closing Session of the District Conference held in St. James' M. E. Church—Bishop Hughes Spoke Wednesday Night.

The district conference of the Kingston District of the New York Conference and the semi-annual meeting of the conference board of examiners and students, which opened Wednesday morning in St. James' M. E. Church, closed this morning. This morning's session was presided over by an address entitled "Luther and the Bible," by Prof. L. J. Peritz of Syracuse University. Prof. Peritz proved to be an interesting talker and thoroughly conversant with his subject.

Bishop Hughes's Address. At the Wednesday evening session the feature was a stirring address by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of Boston, who delivered one of the most interesting and eloquent addresses heard in this city for some time.

Wednesday evening the membership committee of the local Y. M. C. A., in charge of Mr. Nuttall, entertained the young people of the various churches in the city at a most unique social in the gym. During the evening all sorts of games were played and light refreshments were served. The cooperation of the Y. M. C. A. and churches was met with keen interest and there is no doubt that more of these socials would prove of help to the young people of the city.

A Halloween party was held at the home of Elta Aynel Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Those present were the Misses Elta Aynel, Sallie Aynel, Ruth Aynel, Belle Berger, Alto Jerusalem and Ruth Mulson. The latter part of the afternoon and up to 10 o'clock in the evening games were played. Supper was served by Mrs. Hornbeck. Howard's mother, A. large birthday cake was one of the features. The annual masquerade given by the Daughters of Isabella was held in K. of C. Hall Tuesday evening. The affair was the finest social event of the season and a riot of fun prevailed throughout the entire evening. The members, all clad as ghosts, presented a weird appearance as they moved about the hall, which was beautifully decorated as becomes Halloween. Lighted by candles and Jack O'Lanterns only, the room was indeed "spooky" looking. A large table in the center of the hall was prettily laid and decorated, groaning under the weight of the good things to eat. The refreshments, appropriate to the occasion, were delicious. Halloween games were played, fortunes told and dancing indulged in. The wife's pot, swinging from its crossed sticks and filled with presents which decided the fate of all who consulted the presiding witch, provoked no end of merriment. The committee in charge deserve much praise for the success of this affair. The members of the committee are: Grand Regent, Wilfred Sullivan, Mrs. Stella Murphy, Mrs. Kathryn Liscomb, Mrs. Julia Abernethy, Mrs. Katherine Dean, Mrs. Mervyn Hoag and the Misses Mollie Cullen, Mary Donovan, Anna Desmond, Lane Madison and Catherine Humphrey.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Graph to The Freeman. New York, Nov. 1.—The stock market was nervous and unsettled at the opening today and first prices were from 1 to over 2 points below yesterday's closing figures. Steel attracted the most attention being offered in large blocks at 99 at the start and then selling down to 98, a new low record for the year, and 100% at the close yesterday. Bethlehem Steel declined 1 1/2 to 75 1/2, Crucible 1 1/2 to 55 1/2, Republic 1 1/2 to 72 1/2, and Baldwin 1 1/2 to 45 1/2. The marine stocks were active, Marine 1st after opening one point higher at 10 1/2, yielding to 99 1/2. Marine Common fell 1/2 to 27 and Atlantic Gulf declined 1 1/2 to 96 1/2. The railroad stocks were under pressure, Reading yielding to 64 1/2, a loss of 1 1/2, while St. Paul declined 1 1/2 to 44 1/2. Canadian Pacific declined 3/4 to 127 1/2. Texas Company fell 5 points to 127, Chandler Motors declined 2 1/2 to 62 1/2, and Mexican Petroleum was off 1 1/2 at 81 1/2.

There was increased pressure against the market all through the first hour, many stocks selling at new low records for the year. The incentives for selling were found in the same factors that had caused heavy selling in the past few days and although large buying orders were in the market from strong sources, the support was overcome under the pressure of new stocks. Steel which closed yesterday at 100 1/2, sold down to 99 1/2, a new low record for the year and St. Paul declined 1 1/2 to 44 1/2, also a new low record. The losses sustained impaired many speculative accounts, forcing liquidation by holders whose resources had become exhausted and at the same time created nervousness in many quarters which was reflected in heavy selling. There were frequent rallies interrupting the downward movements but this simply facilitated liquidation and was not long maintained. Marine Preferred for a time showed a firm tone but after rallying to 100 1/2, dropped to 99 1/2. New York Central sold down to 68 1/2, a new low record. There was no change in trading conditions in the late afternoon, although many stocks showed rallying tendencies after further breaks and heavy liquidation continued, partly offset by banking support. Steel sold down to 95 1/2, followed by a rally to above 96. Bethlehem B after selling at 71 1/2, rose to 76 1/2 and Mexican Petroleum when sold down to 77 1/2, rallied to 80. Crucible also rallied from its low level but these gains were offset by continued selling of New York Central below 69. Marine Preferred rallied to 102 1/2.

The market closed extremely weak today, government bonds unchanged, railroad and other bonds weak.

How to Keep Your Friends.

It is almost impossible to be genuinely friendly with a person who insists on being too close to you, on knowing all your thoughts, feelings and affairs, and on claiming your time and attention on the excuse of affection alone.

The bonds of true friendship must be easy and its demands must be for something real and vital. The woman who calls on you perpetually because she has taken a sudden fancy to you is a blind and selfish egotist, in a mild way. Her calls may interrupt your work and bore you intensely, but if you are a polite and courteous person you bear with her until she directs her attention elsewhere. She will probably tell the new friend that you are "very unresponsive." Some women clutch at every new acquaintance and then complain that they have so few friends. The reason is that friendship is not built on trivialities and whims, but by giving such valuable things as true consideration, real interest and manifesting a decent reserve as to the other person's confidence and nonconfidings. —Woman's Home Companion.

Rats Sworn Enemies of Birds.

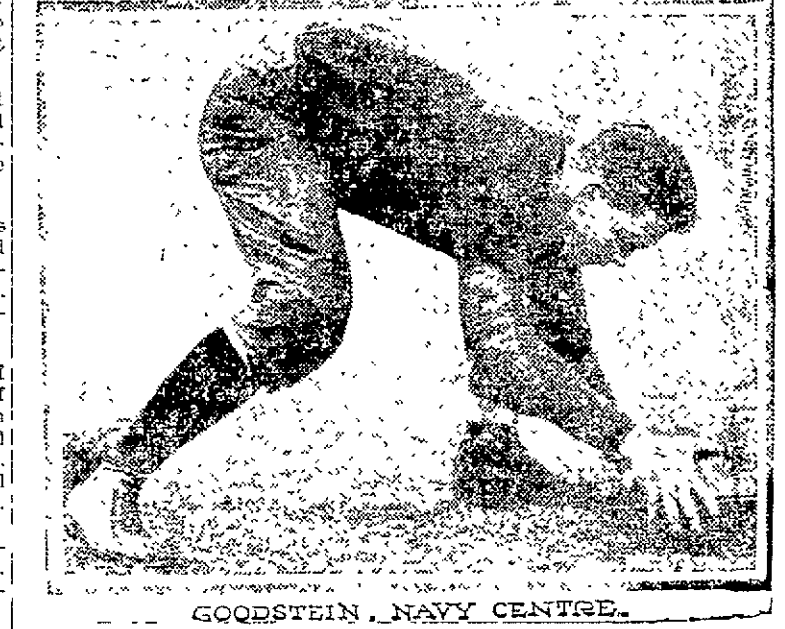

The number of useful insect-eating birds nesting on the ground or in low bushes which fall victims to rats is extremely large and is one of the many kinds of injury done by these pernicious animals which cannot be computed. E. W. Nelson writes in the National Geographic Magazine. Probably few frequenters of the countryside have returned to look into a bird's nest to observe its condition without many times finding it destroyed and fragments of egg shells lying about. Unquestionably a large percentage of such nests located in the neighborhood of buildings have been raided by rats. On one of the small Danish islands it has been authentically recorded that the progeny of a single pair of rats, which escaped from captivity, in two years exterminated a great colony of birds for which the island has been noted.

Washington's Two Birthdays.

In 1582 Pope Gregory XIII ordered that all the Catholic countries should adopt a new calendar. This calendar was correct and is at the present time in general use throughout the world. In the year that the calendar was adopted ten days were dropped. Thus the day after October 4 of the Julian calendar became October 15 of the Gregorian. This calendar was not adopted by England until 1752. Washington being born in 1732, he was twenty years old at the time the new calendar was adopted. Thus his first 20 birthdays fell on the 11th of February and the others fell on the 22d.

Slips Are Very Amusing in Some Instances, and Hard to Explain in Many Others.

If some lady typists can make a mistake they will, and some of their efforts are very amusing, a humorist relates. One typist produced the remark in regard to a rather conceited man, that "his one weakness was onion sauce." The real word being "omniscience." Another, in an obituary of a great theologian, spoke of his belief in the "immortality of the soul." Just the omission of the "t" from "immortality" made all the difference. The photograph shows Goodstein, the giant navy center rush, in position to snap the ball back to his quarterback. Under the able tutelage of Coach Doherty the Middies have developed one of the greatest attacks of the present season. Because of his great strength and aggressiveness Goodstein is used as the pivot of this attack. It was his warbling playing that polished up the Annapolis offense to such a degree that they swamped "Mike" Bennett's Haverford team by a record score.

meeting waxed very sympathetic over the death of the wife of a manager of the company at some fever-stricken place in West Africa, and the reporters who were afterwards getting out this speech together to save time were in a jocular mood. At the end of the pathetic oration the one who was dictating said, for a joke, and to amuse the others, "Lead Laughter," and the foolish girl, who was as much a machine as the typewriter at which she sat, actually put the words in. Moreover, they appeared in print in a financial newspaper, and a very humble apology had to be made by the editor afterwards, although any explanation of the "ship" was impossible.

S. S. CONVENTION
CLOSED WEDNESDAY

Song Service and Interesting Addresses Were the Features of the Closing Session—Delegates Speak in Praise of the Hospitality.

The Rev. J. Fred Berg, D. D. of Brooklyn, N. Y., the Rev. William H. Bookcock, director of religious education, First Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, and the Rev. Joseph E. Appleby, of Ellenville were the speakers at the closing session Wednesday afternoon of the Ulster County Sunday School Association, held in Trinity Church.

The afternoon's session was opened by a song service in charge of the Rev. Mr. Appleby, and this feature of the service was enjoyed. Every person sang heartily.

Sunday School Improvement. "How We Can Improve Our Sunday Schools" was the topic of the Rev. Mr. Bookcock's address and he gave some very practical suggestions along this line. He is an expert in Sunday school work and many of his suggestions were the result of personal experience.

The most important of the Rev. Mr. Bookcock's suggestions were as follows: The spirit of reverence should be instilled into the pupils and the Sunday school should be conducted in a dignified manner.

A committee should be formed on religious education and the superintendent of the Sunday school should be appointed by this committee, with the approval of the teachers.

The Sunday school superintendent should not have any other church duties but should specialize in Sunday school work. Departmental superintendents should be appointed. Sunday school superintendents and teachers should receive at least a modest compensation.

Records should be kept in an efficient and systematic manner. Many other suggestions were offered.

Following the address of the Rev. Mr. Berg, the Rev. Mr. Appleby made a temperance address and briefly reviewed the temperance work that is being carried on in this county.

A Cordial Welcome.

The delegates at the convention spoke in high praise of the hospitality that they received from the members of Trinity Church and the other churches of the city.

"You certainly have reason to be proud of the hospitality of Kingston people," said one of the delegates to a Freeman man. "My wife and I have been very cordially received here and we have enjoyed our short stay very much."

The convention was a success. The attendance the first day was a little smaller than usual, owing to the heavy rain, but what was lacking in numbers was made up in enthusiasm.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Let me not hurt by any selfish deed Or thoughtless word, the heart of foe or friend: Nor would I pass, unseeing, worthy need Or sin by silence where I should defend.

CHICKEN FOR TWO.

Many housewives who have but two or three in family hesitate to buy chicken except when entertained as it lasts so long. With an ice chest one small chicken will serve three or four meals for two not giving very large servings to be sure, but plenty enough to satisfy a good appetite.

second part is a good serving if grown on a normally active chicken and with a good helping of mashed potato, plenty of good gravy and another vegetable will make a good main dish even for the hearty man. The drum sticks may be boned, stuffed and used as another meat, the wings, neck and back as a stew with biscuits and gravy and there will still be enough bits to combine with apple, celery, and a few nuts to make a most sustaining salad for luncheon. By planning to cook vegetables with meat in a casserole, the meat seasons the vegetables and a small serving will satisfy. Creamed chicken on toast may be one way to use the breast and other bits carefully removed from the bones. The bones crushed and cooked in cold water will make a cupful or two of good broth, which may commence the dinner. Of course we will not enjoy chicken for four meals closely following, but before there is opportunity for any spilling it may be acceptably served.

The back and neck may be made into a vegetable stew by adding carrots, onions, potatoes and celery with rice and cooking a long time well covered in the oven. For an invalid the delicate fillet taken from the breast broiled in a well-greased paper, makes a most dainty tid-bit.

The breast may be cooked, cut in slices and served as sandwich filling with bacon, making a most popular and satisfying sandwich.

Chicken Jelly.—Take one chicken breast cut fine, and add to a pint of hot chicken stock. Dissolve a package of gelatin in a little cold water and add it to the hot stock. Season well and pour into a mold. Serve cut in various shapes as salad or molded in small forms served on lettuce with mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

The No-Breakfast Plan.

The breakfast-eating habit often creates an abnormal stomachic condition, says Physical Culture Magazine. If one is in perfect health, and arises with a keen appetite for breakfast, there will be no occasion for omitting the meal. There are, however, but few in perfect health, and the omission of breakfast gives the stomach a chance to adjust itself. It has an opportunity to develop a keen appetite for the particular character of nourishment most needed by the body at that time. The no-breakfast plan is a splendid means of properly adjusting one's appetite, both as to quantity and character of food.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The high school has received a receipt for the fifty dollars which the students subscribed to buy a bond. When they will get the bond, or what they will do with it when they do get it, is not definitely known.

In assembly Monday morning Harry Connelly put before the students the following proposition; that the students should bring a small collection every month for a period of four months or the same amount if necessary, in a shorter period of time, to be paid to certain elected treasurers in the various roll call rooms. The money will be what might be called a "Preparedness Fund," with which they will be able to buy a hundred dollar bond, in case the United States finds it necessary to call upon its citizens for another loan. Most undoubtedly the proposition will be accepted. Patriotic! Be patriotic! These words seemed firmly stamped upon the minds of the student body, and they are setting a most noble example. Who will follow?

For a number of weeks, the student at the end of every week, that means Friday afternoon immediately after school, have been given the opportunity of relaxing their bodies by enjoying a quiet little dance for an hour or so. Just among themselves you know. Of course they are always chaperoned by some of the members of the faculty, but they would greatly appreciate it, if "outsiders" would please not come in to chaperon and do otherwise also.

For a number of years past only those students who were so unfortunate or lazy as to fall below an average of 75 in one or more of their studies have been considered. It has been the general rule to keep such students from a half an hour to an hour after school afterwards in order that he or she might by such means be persuaded to better himself or herself to a little greater activity. This same plan is being followed this year, but Principal Lewis has also decided this year to make public the names of those students who are doing very satisfactory work. He is doing this in an endeavor to encourage those whose names are not published, to brush up on both their pride and their lessons. The grade cards have been given out and their results are as follows:
